Just keep in mind the fact that every cent of money in the State Treasury was put there by the tax payers of Tennessee.

The Nashville Daily Tennessean has canceled all contracts for whisky advertisements and declared for State-wide prohibition.

Former Senator E. W. Carmack, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, is for State-wide prohibition. "The saloon has sinned away its day of grace in Tennessee; it will not be reformed, therefore it must be destroyed," is the statement of Mr. Carmack in an interview in the Nashville Tennessean Wednesday.

Ex-Governor James D. Porter and General J. D. C. Atkins are good men. But it is frequently the case that good men are misled in forming opinions. When these gentlemen were in politics the convention idea reigned supreme in Tennessee. Today it is different. Today the common people are demanding a fair and untrammelled opportunity of expressing their will at the ballot box for men to serve them in office. Porter and Atkins were names for the politicians of our boyhood days to conjure with, but they have dropped behind in the march of events.

The Nashville Tennessean and the Memphis News Scimitar give each week extracts from the various newspapers of the State giving the current views of the press and people over the State in regard to the State Committee in giving us the delegated or bogus primary, also the statements of those numerous papers about the strength of the two candidates for Governor before the masses of the people. This feature of giving extracts each week from the country papers over the State is absent from the Nashville American and Memphis Commercial Appeal. The reason they fail to give extracts is probably because they find very little being said or written to their liking by the press or people of the State. There is a wide chasm between the people and these corporation papers, and they have never established a "canal of correspondence."—Newbern Tennessean.

Mr. Carmack not only consented to a general, direct primary when he had everything to lose and nothing to gain in the race with Bob Taylor, but consented that the powers of the returning board be taken out of the hands of the then machine, which was favorable to him, and placed with a private citizen of known probity.
